FRONTIERS

IMAGINE invites a select group of Mission Board, CEO Circle and IMAGINE Leaders to Bhutan for the the inaugural IMAGINE Frontiers. Are you ready for a systemic reset on all levels? Join this deep dive into conscious leadership, regenerative impact, and inner development. Rooted in the philosophy of Gross National Happiness and guided by dialogue with the Bhutanese royal family, monks, policymakers, local farmers and craftspeople, this immersive expedition blends reflection, cultural immersion, and hands-on contribution. We'll deepen our connection with each other, the people and nature of Bhutan, and with ourselves in ways that stay with us long after the expedition ends.

Bhutan is unlike anywhere else on earth. A country that measures its success by the wellbeing of its people and the health of its natural world. It is a place where ancient wisdom and modern ambition coexist. It's a place where forests are constitutionally protected as a gift to the world, and where the air itself invites you to think bigger and more courageously. To visit Bhutan is to encounter a society that has made a conscious choice about the kind of future it wants to build, and to be quietly challenged to ask the same of yourself.

For leaders accustomed to moving fast, this expedition asks something different. It asks you to slow down, to listen, and to feel. What is the next frontier for my life? What does it mean to truly lead from within? How do we build organizations and systems that sustain the people and nature within them? What can one of the world's most intentional societies teach us about the responsibilities that come with influence? And we won't only learn from Bhutan; we'll also give back by offering our expertise and opening our networks to support local leaders and communities.

Through shared IMAGINE rituals and purposeful encounters, participants step away from conventional leadership models and into a deeper practice of presence and long-term impact. You will return with a felt sense of what a different kind of leadership looks and feels like in practice and inspired by the idea that everything is possible and scalable -- including being carbon negative as a country and net positive as a society.

Over eight transformative days, we travel through Bhutan's sacred sites and communities, from the monasteries of Paro to the valleys of Punakha, exploring themes of wellbeing, wisdom, and Gross National Happiness, culminating in a mindful reflection on regenerative living, purposeful leadership, and the harmony between people, nature, and culture.

We arrive in Paro and travel to Thimphu, gathering for an IMAGINE opening circle, visiting the iconic Tashi Chodzong fortress and settling into our first evening of storytelling. From there, each day builds on the last. We cross the Dochula pass and arrive in Punakha to encounter the principles of Gross National Happiness in conversation with those who live and govern by them. As the week unfolds, we move between the contemplative and the practical. We visit Gangtey Gompa, take nature walks, and explore regenerative hospitality. We join local farmers on a food and agriculture in a literal 'field trip' and reflect on Bhutan's remarkable identity as a carbon negative country. In Thimphu, we visit Chhimi Lhakhang and explore the vision of His Majesty the King for a Mindful City which will be a blueprint for a future where technology, nature, culture, and wellbeing coexist in harmony. We plant trees, receive wisdom from monks, visit Rinpung Dzong, and swap learnings at the end of each day.

The inaugural IMAGINE Frontier summits with a challenging hike to Tiger's Nest Monastery, one of the most sacred and breathtaking sites in the Himalayan world, followed by a closing circle and celebration dinner. We'll give farewell hugs in Paro, changed in ways that are hard to articulate and impossible to ignore.

Opportunities like this to learn from Bhutan and to give back, to deepen connections while deepening connections with other IMAGINE community members are rare and precious. The IMAGINE Frontier is open to an intimate group of 28 leaders committed to creating system's change across food and agri, hospitality, fashion, finance and more.
